preserved lemon

The preserved lemon that we used for the shoot was made by a famous woman in the Middle East. She is a good friend of my friend Francine. She has been in the Middle East for many years and has learned the art of cooking like a local. She has a very special recipe for preserved lemons. She said that the art of cooking like a local is not just about the ingredients, but also about the way you use them. She said that the art of cooking like a local is not just about the ingredients, but also about the way you use them.

At least 10 small lemons per jar
100g coarse sea salt
100g coarse sea salt
2 fresh hot peppers per jar
1 fresh hot pepper per jar
1 fresh hot pepper per jar
1 fresh hot pepper per jar

Method: 1 large bowl washed and dry Then by cutting a slice across the top way through with the back of a sharp knife
"squeezing" out the juice into a large bowl Cover with dampened hot cloths and leave the jars open to dry. Heat the jars as tightly as possible until the jars are hot to the touch. Add the hot lemons, peppers and salt to the jars. Seal the jars. Store in a cool, dark place.
